Wheat Seeding Suggestions Given.

Recommended wheat seeding dates are October 1 to November 1 in Appomattox County.

Seeding early in the recommended period will usually result in stronger plants that will better withstand the winter. Wheat should not be seeded until after the first killing frost because of the hessian fly.

Seed one of the recommended varieties of wheat at the rate of 1 to 1½ bushels per acre. Seed treatment, using chemical disinfectants will help control certain diseases.

Fertilize with 400 to 600 pounds per acre of 4-16-8, 4-12-8, or 5-10-10 at time of seeding. If wheat follows tobacco or corn that received 1,000 pounds or more of fertilizer per acre, the application for wheat may be cut to 200 to 300 pounds per acre at seeding.

Top-dress with 16 to 40 pounds of nitrogen per acre between February 1 and March 15 if lodging is not to be expected. On light sandy soils, top-dress with 30 to 40 pounds of nitrogen. Where a legume is grown in the rotation or manure is used, it may be necessary to eliminate all nitrogen to reduce lodging. Use enough lime so that the soil will test 6.0 to 6.5 pH.

Recommended varieties of wheat in Appomattox are Vahart, Seneca, Thorne, Leaps Prolific, Nudel, Atlas 50, Atlas 66 and Anderson.

Clean Spraying, Dusting Equipment Before Storage

There're still some odd jobs left for the home gardener, say specialists at VPI.

For instance, they say to wash out all sprayers carefully to remove spray residues. A weak vinegar solution will help. After the sprayers have been thoroughly washed out, coat the tank and other metal parts with a thin covering of oil, and hang in a dry location.

Don't wash a duster, but carefully brush out the dust with a stiff brush. Some of the outside metal parts might be oiled, but be careful not to get oil inside the duster as it will tend to cake the dust that will be used next season. After the duster is thoroughly cleaned, hang it in a dry place for storage.

Most left-over chemicals can be used next year if they are stored in a dry place in air-tight containers. Label the chemicals carefully, so you won't make any mistakes in using them next year. A good way to store chemicals is to put them in a glass fruit jar which can be sealed tightly to prevent the absorption of moisture or undue evaporation. Store them away from children and animals.

Poultry Research Points Way To Profits

Research is pointing the way to profits in many phases of the poultry business, says R. H. Burtner, associate poultry husbandman at VPI.

For instance, a Purdue University study showed that oil-spraying of eggs did about as much to maintain quality as did temperature differences. Treated eggs held at room temperatures ranging from 68 to 82° for two weeks kept their quality about as well as untreated eggs stored at 55°. The oil-spraying was worth about 20° reduction in temperature for maintaining quality or prolonging shelf life of the eggs. Oiling cost only a fraction of a cent a dozen.

A test at the University of Idaho showed that keeping laying house temperature at about 55° from November through March, compared to a fluctuating temperatuer of 40 to 60°, resulted in about 10% improvement in feed efficiency (pounds of feed per dozen eggs) in chickens on both high and low energy diets.

NEWS FROM HOLLYWOOD

Remember little Claude Jarman, who was so good in "The Yearling?" Well, in the intervening years, Claude joined the Navy. Recently, he went to Metro for lunch and they grabbed him for a job. So, Jarman arranged a Navy leave to play in a TV series.

M-G-M has signed Ingred Bergman to star in the Sol Siegel production, "I Thank A Fool," an exciting story of romance and suspense. It will be filmed in England and Ireland next summer.

Barbara Bel Geddes, who for six years has been concentrating on a stage career, is back in Hollywood where she has signed for a starring role with James Stewart and Kim Novak in "From Among the Dead," an Alfred Hitchcock production, soon to start filming at Paramount.

Each year insects, disease, fire, and other destructive agents kill an amount of sawtimber equal to one-fourth the annual growth, says the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

ABOUT YOUR HOME

By Frances Dell

The outdoor living-room is becoming more important than ever before. Homes built on small, city lots often feature this area as an important selling point.

The size of the outdoor room depends on the demands of the family. For best results it is walled in on the exposed sides for privacy.

The city gardener usually confines his main efforts on this area.

Flowering plants can be grown in large pots and moved into the outdoor living room to furnish warmth and color. The background planting should be evergreen.

In some sections of the mainly California, and Texas ing systems are installed the life of the system. Enclosed on at least water heating pipes are the ground coverings. It is to use an outdoor room of the time in almost every of the year in many sections U. S. A.

An outdoor living-room fect place to entertain, becomes as noisy or cumbe filled as the same room side a home. The added air it gives to a party is with our modern way of
